
MESSAGE FROM THE EDITORS

May 2018

Dear Reader:

Welcome to the third Transformative Learning Conference Proceedings - 2018!

This year's conference was a great gathering of academics, practitioners, students and others with a passion for transformative learning. John Tagg and Peter Felten both provided stimulating key notes and workshops, in addition to the 70 concurrent and poster sessions. Along with these formal sessions, there were opportunities to interact with others informally and to make connections and establish networks that will carry on beyond the conference itself.

As in the past, sessions included interactive, research, poster, and roundtable presentations. The presenters were all given the opportunity to share their abstracts through the Proceedings and we are pleased to offer the following collection of Transformative Learning thought pieces. Hopefully these will stimulate further connections between participants as well as those who are on a search for greater exposure to transformative learning.

We have certainly enjoyed the opportunity to integrate presentation ideas and especially, to extend the conference experience to non-attendees. We look forward to next year's conference and to stimulating future opportunities for additional transformative learning.

Sincerely,

Jeanetta D. Sims

Proceedings Co-Editor

Co-Editor, Journal of Transformative Learning

Assistant Dean & Professor

Colleges of Graduate Studies & Business

University of Central Oklahoma

Email: jsims7@uco.edu

Sincerely,

Ed Cunliff

Proceedings Co-Editor

Co-Editor, Journal of Transformative Learning

Professor

College of Education & Professional Studies

University of Central Oklahoma

Email: ecunliff@uco.edu

Sincerely,

Ms. Jacie Harvel

Editorial Research Assistant

Sincerely,

Ms. Anna Doré

Editorial Research Assistant